Custom Themes, Plug-ins, Mods, Development

Jeff Behnke - a.k.a. (topdown) (phpbbxpert)

2010

The phpBB3 Invitation Only mod allows you to create a tightly networked community having closed registration.

The way it works is with a new registration module in the UCP where existing users register people they know. The standard registration is completely disabled (If you want).... You may want to disable it after you get your initial users on board.

But from there on, the only way new users are added is by someone already an existing user on the site. The mod allows them to pre-register someone they personally know and their account is marked Verified By the user that added them.

The adding users process is simple, it is a UCP module in every user account. (This can be controlled by Group Level Permissions)

As you can see above Custom Profile Fields that were set to the Registration screen also show up.

The Verified By field is also a custom profile field but it is populated automatically and not editable.

When a new user is added successfully the Admins receive a notification of Who was added and by what user.

```
